Summer games

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Few changes were made as members of the Romulus Board of Education reorganized for the new year.

During the first of two consecutive meetings Monday, board members elected officers. Ken Berlinn was selected to continue as president of the board. Ed Wilkerson was re-elected vice president of the board. Dan Bales will serve again as secretary. Mary King was elected to replace Howard Kesner as treasurer for the board.

Board members also approved extension of the Pregnant Person Agreement with Garden City Schools. Through this program, a pregnant Romulus student has the option to attend alternative education courses in Garden City. Three teachers are responsible for participants in grades seven through 12.

Romulus schools will be responsible for transporting students to the program.

Board members also renewed memberships with the Michigan Association of School Boards, the Metropolitan Bureau of School Studies, Inc. and the Michigan High School

Kenneth Berlinn
Board president

Athletic Association. Total membership renewal costs come to $5,000.

Memberships in such organizations, provide local school board members with ideas for problem solving and programs. Joel Carr, assistant superintendent for finance and operations, said.

A schedule of meetings, appointment of an auditor and school attorney were also approved. Meetings will be staged the second and fourth Monday of every month. The firm of Post, Smythe, Lutz and Ziel will serve as auditor, and the firm of Keller, Thomas, Schwarze, Schwarze, DuBay & Katz, P.C. will act as attorneys for the district.

City joins petitions for street lighting

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus city officials agreed Monday to join a petition requesting street lights for a section of Cypress Street.

Approximately 48 percent of the property owners in the area recently petitioned the city for street lights, according to Mayor Beverly McAnally.

In order to be assessed for the improvement, 51 percent of the residents must sign the petition. Because the city owns several parcels of property in the area, McAnally requested that the city join the petition, thus providing the needed support.

City councilmembers agreed to add the city name to petitions.

A public hearing is scheduled for tomorrow to give residents an opportunity to discuss the assessment that would be necessary to establish a "street light district." This will be the first public hearing staged about street lights.

"I don't know that we've put many street lights in in the last 10 years," McAnally said.

The hearing will be staged to comply with a new state law scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1 regarding assessments for local improvements.

During the hearing costs for the project will be presented.

Newest airport development welcomes 1st of many tenants

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Developers of the Metro Airport Center on Wayne Road welcomed their first tenant this month and anticipate more to come within the next six weeks.

Construction is nearly complete on the first phase of the project, which will cover 65,000 square feet near city hall. Ultimately, the project is expected to cover 464,000 square feet and will include office, warehouse, air freight and light industrial facilities.

Architect Ed Schalak is developing the center which will cost between $1.5 million and $3 million.

The completion of the first phase of the Metro Airport Center was delayed because of rain, according to Paul Burgor, leasing agent for the center.

"The killer has been all the rain we've had," he said.

Nevertheless, he said, 20 business people have expressed interest in a lease.

The first tenant to sign on the dotted line is sporting good distributor H & L Distribution. The company moved in July 1.

Developers are selling the concept of flex buildings planned for the center. They will contain office space along with warehouse areas based on the needs of the tenants.

"We provide a very viable alternative for them," Burgor said.

The development is also attractive, however, to those who do not necessarily need a warehouse facility, Burgor said.

Developers are also promoting proximity to the airport, low noise levels and easy access to I-94 and I-275.

In four to six months, Burgor said, developers hope to have the site approved as a free trade zone. Tenants would then be able to store items from foreign countries with little or no customs charges.

Because the nearby international airport is a major selling point for the project, developers are pleased to see airport expansion plans move ahead even with the buyout of Northwest Airlines.

School board education

Several local educators were among 75 delegates who attended the annual Michigan Educators Washington Conference last week. The event was sponsored by Congressmen William D. Ford (D-Taylor) and John Dingell (D-Trenton). The two-day forum, staged in Washington, D.C., focused on the impact of the federal budget on local education, the role of the school in child care, teacher certification and the educational needs for the future work force.

Seniors net state grants

Two September Days Senior Citizens Center projects have received state grants, totaling more than $9,000.

Van Buren Township Treasurer Helen Foster reported to the township board that $5,227 has been allocated to provide surfacing for the expansion of the parking lot at the senior center, and $4,300 was awarded for insulation work.

Commenting on the grant, Rep. James Kosteva said, "I'm delighted that the center has been awarded these funds. The grants will be used to replace glass panels with insulated panels and to construct additional parking spaces."

Kosteva noted that the funds were awarded by the Senior Citizens Center Unmet Needs and the Energy Modification grant programs, which are designed to assist senior centers with renovation and energy-saving programs.

The state Office of Aging awarded nearly $983,000 in grants this year.

Youth injured by lawn mower

A 2-year-old was reportedly run over by a riding lawn mower at approximately 9 p.m. Sunday at a home on Hoeft Road, near Bog Road, in Van Buren Township.

The youth received lacerations on the buttocks and gashes on the feet, according to Van Buren police officials. He was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital where he is in temporary serious condition.

The victim apparently walked behind the lawn mower while it was running and was struck by it when the driver put the machine in reverse. The incident was labeled accidental.

INTERESTING EYE FACTS

Humans are not the only living creatures having color vision. All primates such as chimpanzees and gorillas have excellent color vision, but other mammals have no color perception. Even many insects have color vision—the honeybee is attracted to ultraviolet colors given off by many flowers, colors not visible to the human eye.

Our eye has a blind spot, which corresponds to the point in the back of our eye where the optic nerve leaves the eye. The small blind spot is just to the side of the center of vision. When both eyes are open, however, each eye "covers" for the blind spot of the other eye.

About one million cataract operations were performed in the United States last year, making it one of the most common and safest of surgeries.

Some animals, such as the cat, have excellent night vision. They have a reflecting layer, called the tapetum lucidum, behind the retina. What little light does enter the eye at night is bounced off this mirror-like layer and the animal's eye seems to "glow in the dark" when illuminated by the headlights of your car.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Police nab theft suspect

A Detroit man has been charged with breaking and entering a Romulus home and stealing approximately $7,000 in property, according to Romulus police officials.

Charles Whitman, 33, was arraigned in the 34th District Court, in Romulus, Friday. He was also charged with unlawfully driving away an automobile. Bond was set at $100,000 and preliminary examination was scheduled for July 19.

Whitman was arrested by Romulus police officers at 2 a.m. July 6 on the 14000 block of New York. The officers were responding to a report of a suspicious vehicle. When they approached the car, they noticed it contained a VCR, microwave oven, jewelry and power tools.

These items matched a description of property missing from a nearby home and the car belonged to the owner of that home.

Whitman was arrested at the scene.

Boat fire is reported

Romulus police and fire officials responded Saturday morning to reports of a boat fire on eastbound I-94, near Ozga.

The boat was being towed behind a pickup truck, when the driver noticed flames from the boat. The driver pulled over and sought help.

Damage to the boat was estimated at $700. The cause of the fire is unknown.

High school is site of wedding

The courtyard at Romulus Senior High School will be the scene of a wedding tomorrow.

Mayor Beverly McNally will perform the ceremony for Terri Tank and Ronald Morris. Morris graduated from the Romulus high school last year as class president.

Local art fair nears

Applications are being accepted for the upcoming Romulus Arts Council annual arts and crafts fair.

The fair will be staged Sept. 16 on the grassy area near the Romulus Public Library, on Wayne Road.

Space rental is $10. Crafters must furnish their own tables. For further information, call Gloria Chandler at 941-2678.

Pro-choice group forms

A new local group has formed in response to the recent Supreme Court ruling which allows state lawmakers to decide the legality of abortion.

Members of Voters for Choice will attempt to relay the pro-choice stance on items facing Michigan legislators. For more information, call 941-1819.

Firefighters try new role

Two Romulus firefighters have been appointed to training officer positions.

Charles Pecsénye will coordinate basic training for the volunteer firefighters. Mark Wilhide will be responsible for first aid training.

"I think they're going to be a great asset to us," Fire Chief William Greenslaid said.

Senior picnic, outing planned

Activities ranging from a potluck picnic to a mystery trip will be available through the Romulus Senior Center in upcoming weeks.

Tomorrow, the senior bus will travel to the Wyandotte Art Fair for the day.

A potluck picnic will be staged at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Senior Citizen park near the senior center. Sloppy joes will be provided. Participants are asked to bring snacks and side dishes.

Finally, a mystery trip is planned for Aug. 4. The activity will cost $26.

For more information, call the senior center at 942-6852.

New local grill stresses comfort

Casual fine dining is the description owners are using for the Merriman Street Grill, the newest restaurant in Romulus.

The grill, which is located on Merriman, south of Ecorse, opened for the first time Friday afternoon. Complete with a bar, the restaurant is designed to meet modern trends in food choices for lunch and dinner crowds, said Paul Nasir, manager and one of three owners. A large portion of the menu is devoted to appetizers such as battered mushrooms, baked brie and fried mozzarella. Complete meals such as dijon chicken and steak are also available.

In light of interest in healthy food choices, the menu is highlighted with dishes approved by the American Heart Association.

Nasir believes the atmosphere is nearly as important for success as the actual food. In a way, he said, the grill conveys two separate personalities. The bar is central to the front part of the restaurant. Seats are somewhat taller and a television will soon be available.

A more traditional dining area can be found further back in the building.

"We're still going through growing pains," Nasir said.

Once business picks up, Nasir said he will offer promotions such as a weekly special on one of three types of oyster dishes available. Nasir may also provide catering services for private aircraft carriers in the area.

Opening in Romulus appears to have been a wise decision, Nasir said.

"People have been very supportive...stopping by, asking when we're going to open," he said.

For Nasir, becoming a restaurant owner is the fulfillment of a long-time goal. He has been working in the business since he began cleaning tables at age 16. He believes his career goal is not uncommon.

"Everybody has that goal, and I made it," he said.

Hours of the Merriman Street Grill are 11 to 2 a.m. except for Sundays when the business will open later in the afternoon.

New business spurs Beverly Road repair

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A section of Beverly Road may be improved soon to pave the way for a new truck trailer repair facility.

City councilmembers approved Monday a zoning change from light industrial to industrial transportation for a 10-acre parcel of land on Beverly between Middlebelt and Inksater roads. The approval was granted on the condition that the developer takes responsibility for the road improvement needed to accommodate large trucks.

In a recent letter to members of the city planning commission on this issue, planning consultant Dennis Meagher indicated the zoning change complies with the recently adopted master plan.

"...the area under consideration in this request is suitable for the development of industrial uses in general, and trucking-related uses in particular," Meagher said.

City officials were concerned, however, about the road improvements required for the trailer facility and how other area businesses and residents would be affected.

"I don't think the people living in this area should be saddled with the road improvements," Councilman Ellis Pennington said.

Mayor Beverly McNally suggested a meeting between city officials, developers and area property owners before site-plan approval is granted.

"We need to sit down and hammer this out," she said.

Expressway noise barrier eyed by federal officials

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

City officials are hopeful that a proposed noise barrier for the south side of eastbound I-94 near Shook Road will become a reality.

The noise barrier has been under consideration for several years, but without much progress, city officials said.

Officials of the Michigan Department of Transportation are now requesting the Southeastern Michigan Council of Government to place the noise barrier on a list of projects eligible for federal funding.

Federal law requires a metropolitan planning organization, such as SEMCOG, to maintain such a list.

The project would be part of a noise-elimination program for Southeastern Michigan.

This attempt to place the barrier on the 1989/90 Transportation Improvement Project list is not a guarantee.

"It does mean they're attempting to apply for funding," Dennis Oakes, director of community development, said.

"At least it's moving again," Mayor Beverly McNally said.

Resident demonstrates talents

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A Romulus resident was a participant last week in a talent show which featured local residents with the most creative "stupid tricks."

Maureen McNally competed in the Channel 4/Taco Bell event that promised the winner an all-expense paid weekend trip for two to New York to see the David Letterman Show.

Each potential performer was given a 30-second audition to show their stuff. McNally fit two acts into her time. First, she imitated a human fountain, spraying water out of her mouth.

McAnally, daughter-in-law of Mayor Beverly McNally, said she has performed this trick in the past for her friends, sending a jet stream quite a distance.

During her second act, McNally was assisted by her dog, Buckwheat. McNally's partner leapt into the air and bit her on the nose on command.

McAnally is a car saleswoman for Fairlane Ford, in Dearborn. She said she had a good time competing, but is a little disappointed she did not win.

"It was fun...something corny you always want to do, and I decided to go ahead and do it," she said.

Three finalists have been selected. David Cardy of Detroit played Wipe Out with musical accompaniment on his lips. Linda Cebulah of Warren featured her pet dove, Lovey the Dental Dove, which stuck its head into her mouth and cleaned her teeth. David Ijaz of Canton Township drank a full glass of hot salsa blindfolded and without using his hands.

Measles outbreak subsiding in area

No additional cases of rubella measles have been reported in Wayne County during the past four weeks, according to Wayne County Health Department officials.

Health officials believe the measles outbreak has nearly ended, thanks to summer vacations at local schools.

"Kids are not congregating as they used to in school, making it more difficult for the disease to be transmitted," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuck, of the Wayne County Health Department.

A total of 206 confirmed, suspect and probable cases were reported in Wayne County during the outbreak.

Health officials will now begin to investigate each reported case, to determine exactly the number of confirmed cases of rubella measles. The outbreak began at Garden City High School this spring, shortly after students there returned from spring break.

Airport taxiway grant approved

Wayne County Commissioners last week approved the acceptance of a Federal Aviation Administration grant for construction of a taxiway apron at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, in Romulus.

The $981,750 grant is being used as part of the overall expansion plan at the airport. The taxiway apron is used by planes to enter the runways.

Home Share funding OK'd

Funding for an information center for the Wayne County Home Share program was approved by Wayne County Commissioners last week.

The program, primarily for low-income county residents or senior citizens, seeks to match people to share living expenses. The information center would further assist individuals in finding roommates to share house or apartment rent.

Law targets 2nd mortgages

A new law signed in late June by Gov. Blanchard, allows financial institutions dealing in secondary mortgages to offer unsecured loans of up to $3,000 for personal, family or household purposes.

Law limits use of fingerprinting

The fingerprinting of individuals who have committed a misdemeanor is now limited to those fined more than $1,000 or imprisoned for 92 days or both, according to a new state law.

Public Act 97, signed by Gov. Blanchard in late June, replaces the old law, which required mandatory fingerprinting for anyone with a fine of more than $500 or 92 days in jail or both.

License-plate stickers OK'd

A new law, Public Act 111, signed by Gov. Blanchard, permits officials from the Secretary of State to issue license plates that carry a decal displaying the state, national and international symbol or emblem of certain nonprofit public-service organizations.

Bill would ban 'teller' bank fees

State Rep. Maxine Berman (D-Southfield), vice chairman of the House Consumer Affairs Committee, plans to introduce legislation this fall that would ban service-charge fees for consumers using automatic teller machines.

Good, costly ideas

Area educators net advice at conference

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

Several good educational ideas returned with local school officials who attended a Washington, D.C., conference last week, but few funds will be available to implement the new programs.

Representatives of the Wayne-Westland and Romulus school districts, as well as the Wayne County Community College and Wayne County Intermediate School District, recently returned from Washington, where U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) hosted an educational forum.

"It was very informative," said Thomas Svitkovich, Wayne-Westland associate superintendent for communications. "It was an opportunity to see the direction education may take."

Perhaps, the most substantial information received by Wayne-Westland representatives was that pertaining to the Perkins Vocational Educational Act, Svitkovich said. School officials obtained firsthand information about the act and were able to discuss programs and continuing agreements with representatives of WCCC.

The message that rang loud and clear to most attendees,

"We learned that Bush may be the education president, but (Washington officials are) not willing to fund programs."

— Dr. William Bedell
Romulus schools superintendent

however, was to implement more programs with no additional funding.

"We learned that Bush may be the education president, but (Washington officials are) not willing to fund programs," Romulus Superintendent William Bedell said.

Education speakers outlined programs which school districts should offer for 4-year-olds, different rating standards, schools-of-choice policies and teacher testing during the Washington forum, Svitkovich said.

"They have some good intentions, but they are not willing to back them up with funding," Svitkovich explained.

Federal "seed money" is available to local school districts to launch many of the programs discussed, Svitkovich said, but operational funding is the responsibility of the local school district.

Also discussed at the meeting were the dangers of asbestos and the steps which must be taken to remove the substance in public schools. Radon gas and lead paint were also topics of discussion.

Other representatives of Wayne-Westland attending the conference were Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and school board members Kenneth Barnhill, Andrew Spisak, Terri Reighard-Johnson, Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek and Sharon Scott.

Also attending from Romulus were trustees Sandra Langley and Mary M. King.

Survey: Environment is national priority

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Local residents in the Michigan 15th Congressional District are more concerned about the environment than they are about defense initiatives, according to an annual survey recently tabulated by U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor).

Ford's congressional district includes the cities of Wayne, Westland, Belleville and Romulus and Canton, Van Buren and Sumpter townships.

This is the 25th time the veteran congressman and his staff have conducted the annual survey, which is designed to gauge the feelings of Ford's constituents on national issues.

Although the decline in defense support is new, Ford said, the views of his districts are typical of national opinions on key issues.

"The people of the 15th district are closer to national surveys than might make them feel comfortable," Ford said.

Of those who responded to the survey, 92.5 percent said they favor a federal requirement that would require state officials to implement recycling programs. Encouragement of degradable plastic use was also supported by 97.1 percent of the people, and 68.8 percent supported federal funding to promote waste-reduction techniques by industry.

During the past two years, Ford said, the survey has asked different questions on issues such as defense and has received markedly different answers.

This year, fewer than 25 percent of respondents said they would favor the deployment of 50 new MX missiles, which Ford's staff workers say would cost $5.4 billion.

Likewise, only 18.3 percent said they favor spending $27 billion to deploy 500 new Midgetman missiles.

On U.S.-Soviet arms-reduction talks, however, support was overwhelming. More than 86 percent of those responding said they support the conclusion of treaties negotiated with the Soviet Union by former President Ronald Reagan. More than 83 percent said they favor deeper arms cuts by both nations.

Support was also strong for voluntary import restraints, with 78.9 percent in favor, and an increased minimum wage of $4.55 per hour, with 79.6 percent favoring the proposal.

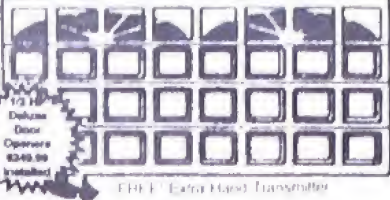

The least-popular idea addressed in the survey was a tax increase to help the homeless. Only 36.1 percent of respondents said they were willing to pay an additional $100 per year in taxes to support programs for the homeless.

Ford said he has seen increased support for homeless assistance and wanted to see if area taxpayers would financially back that new concern.

"Last year, we were terrific-ly surprised by the number of people who talked about the homeless. What we were trying to do is say, 'Are they really serious?'" Ford said. "We decided to do it in the coldest way possible."

Ford acknowledged that, in the past, he has been accused by his critics of asking "loaded" questions, which are designed to produce predictable answers. This year, he said, his staff was assisted by the University of Michigan Center for Population Studies in writing non-biased questions.

Local lawmaker to study family issues

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The needs of modern-day families will be examined closely by State Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton) as a new member of the Democratic Commission on Families.

The commission was formed to study the challenges facing families today and to act on legislative solutions.

Currently, Kosteva said, the responsibilities of the commission are not specific. Commission members hope to learn if state government is effectively helping families.

"We'll see initially a broad brush looking at state policies," Kosteva said.

However, the commission is expected to take a close look at day care and dependant care.

"In Michigan, half of the women with preschool children work outside the home. Yet day care is often expensive, inaccessible and sometimes unsafe," Kosteva said. "According to one study, many of us will spend 17 years raising children and 18 years caring for an aging parent."

Abortion ruling turns spotlight on local clinic

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Workers at the Northland Family Planning Clinic, in Romulus, have no intentions of slowing down operations despite two recent blows to morale.

The clinic, which provides abortion and family-planning services, was targeted for protest July 1 by members of Operation Rescue, a pro-life organization. Between 300 and 400 protesters were on the scene, and 40 people were arrested for blocking the clinic entrance. The facility opened a half-hour later than usual.

Two days later, the justices of the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the legality of abortions is now in the hands of state legislators. The ruling appeared to have a much greater impact on clinic staff than did the protest.

"We're still walking around in shock," Linda Spray, clinic director, said. "We feel defeated in a way, but we're not giving up."

Now, Spray would like to see the clinic become a clearing-house of sorts for those interested in the pro-choice campaign. She plans to provide information, names of contact people and progress on the movement. In addition, Spray would like to see the clinic represented at upcoming marches which she hopes will sway lawmakers in Lansing and Washington.

"We have to do in three months what pro-life has done in 16 years - get off our butts and get our act together," Spray said.

Meanwhile, Spray anticipates further pressure from pro-life groups, such as Operation Rescue.

"It's a tense situation, and with the Supreme Court decision, the situation will become even more tense on both sides," she said.

The clinic will not, however, change policy or tighten security. Protesters are to be expected, Spray said, because of the controversial nature of the facility. She wants the doors to remain open for clients.

The most recent protest staged at the clinic did not prevent workers from doing their jobs or patients from entering the clinic, Spray said. All patients with appointments were warned of the protest by way of telephone calls.

Most of the patients, Spray said, became even more determined to keep their appointments when they heard the news. That attitude is expected to continue.

"We're just not going to be intimidated," Spray said.

Local reaction mixed on abortion decision

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Area residents were split last week in their reaction to the recent ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court on abortion.

In a 5-4 decision, the High Court ruled that a Missouri statute severely limiting a woman's right to abortion was constitutional. Since the ruling was announced, several states have begun the process of imposing their own restrictions on abortion. Speculation has also begun that the justices may go further in its next term, possibly overturning the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision that legalized abortion in the United States.

Jon Roberts, 24, of Taylor, and a parking lot owner in Romulus, said he opposes abortion and believes states should set their own restrictions.

"People are old enough to know better, to use (contraception) or something," Roberts said.

If people wish to avoid having children, Roberts said, they should find ways other than sex to vent their sexual feelings.

Sherri Belobradich, 23, of Belleville, agreed that abortion should be illegal. She said the court should have outlawed abortion instead of merely returning discretion to the states.

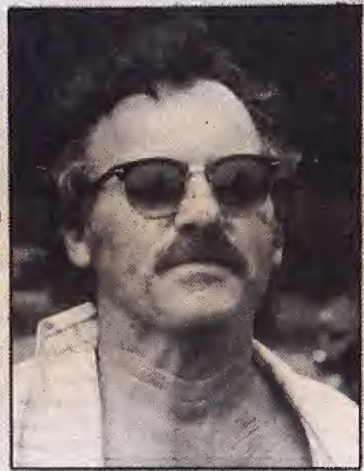

"I think they should have taken the liberty to take the decision into their own hands instead of handing it down," Belobradich said.

But Tom Quattlebaul, 43, of Lincoln Park, said the High Court should not interfere with women's pregnancies. The resulting increase in births, he said, could cost taxpayers money by forcing them to support more children on welfare.

"I don't think there should be a law saying that a woman can't have one (abortion), because that should be her decision," Quattlebaul said.

Sonda Stepchuck, president of Romulus Right to Life, called the decision a major victory for her group and predicted that the court will overturn Roe v. Wade in its next session, when it is slated to hear three more abortion-related cases.

"When the Supreme Court made that decision, they restored the humanity to the unborn," Stepchuck said. "They recognized that a baby is a baby from the moment of conception."

I don't think there should be a law saying that a woman can't have (an abortion), because that should be her decision.

— Tom Quattlebaul
Lincoln Park

When the Supreme Court made that decision . . . they recognized that a baby is a baby from the moment of conception.

— Sonda Stepchuck
Romulus

But Catalina Hall, of the Romulus-based group Voters for Choice, condemned the decision and said her group would participate in a demonstration in downtown Detroit, as well as work to elect pro-choice legislators at the state level.

Local impact minimal in nativity scene ruling

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

A Supreme Court ruling on nativity scenes will cause few headaches among local city officials.

Justices of the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last week that a nativity scene can be displayed on city property as long as secular Christmas symbols are included in the display.

In Westland, where officials of the American Civil Liberties Union filed a lawsuit against the city two years ago for placing a creche at city hall, city attorney Chuck Bokos said the scene will remain the same this Christmas.

"In a way, this Supreme Court ruling verifies a position we've taken all along. Our nativity scene is clearly in compliance with what was rendered in the Supreme Court decision," Bokos said. "As long as the nativity scene has other secular items, then it's okay. We are in compliance and always have been."

The Westland display includes a nativity scene, depicting the birthplace of Jesus, several Santa Claus figures, reindeer, Christmas trees and other ornaments of the season.

Officials of the ACLU stated in a lawsuit in December 1987 that the Westland nativity scene was a display of Christianity, therefore violating separation of church and state. The case progressed to last summer when Westland officials filed a motion in court to dismiss the case, Bokos said. The court agreed.

However, officials of the ACLU appealed to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, in Cincinnati, where a hearing is yet to be staged.

"I would only guess the case is over with. The Supreme Court ruling only proves our point. So there would be no change in our nativity scene," Bokos said.

In Wayne, city councilmembers avoided confrontations altogether last year when they voted not to display a nativity scene on city-owned grounds. The creche last year was placed at the privately owned Palace Theatre Co., according to Wayne City Manager Tom Daily.

"As long as the nativity scene is on private property, then the court ruling doesn't affect us," Daily said.

Opinion

Metro Airport is a Pandora's box

Western Wayne County residents last week received the gift of a modern version of a "Pandora's box," which is conservatively valued at more than $1 billion.

Now, the test is to see whether local and county officials can control such a gift and use it as the impetus for new jobs, new tax base and new development.

Beverly Hills, Calif., investor Alfred Checci visited Wayne County Friday, putting on the charm for the media and touting his promises to expand Northwest Airlines at Metro Airport, in Romulus. Checci reassured Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara that a more than $1 billion planned expansion of the local airport will not be jeopardized by his likely $3.6 billion takeover of the airline.

The visit was good news for McNamara, Wayne County and airport expansion. Checci's past talks about the takeover caused doubt about the expansion of Northwest at Metro and caused county officials to fear the demise of the planned airport expansion.

(Northwest and its Detroit hub is the major airline serving Metro. Thus, all talks of airport expansion hinge on Northwest.)

But Checci's visit was also good news for residents of Romulus, Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Belleville and Canton Township. Many developments and existing businesses in those communities also hinge on the success of Metro Airport and the planned expansion.

A local study released last week again exemplified this point. Commissioned and funded by officials from Wayne, Westland, Romulus and Inkster, the Arthur D. Little consulting-firm study highlighted the dependence of area developments on the airport.

And why not? How many other southeast Michigan communities can offer the convenience of a major commercial airport in their own back yard?

The Little study urged local officials to lure manufacturers and warehouse to their communities. The study spotlighted a 220-acre gem of a piece of land in the city of Westland - the former site of Eloise, the county poorhouse and infirmary.

Characteristics of the Eloise property include Metro Airport to the south, a railroad line extending through it, all utilities and infrastructure in place and immediate occupancy. All the land needs is a multi-billion-dollar tenant to turn this diamond-in-the-rough into valuable jobs, tax base and community growth.

The study also spotlighted an already planned $1 billion development in Romulus, near the airport. Planned by Florida developer E. Llywd Eccelstone is the Metro World Centre - a mini-community of office buildings, hotels, residential homes and a "world college," which will offer students high-tech occupational training and enable them to compete fairly with their Japanese counterparts.

But the consulting-firm study, we hope, was no revelation to area officials. It also was no Pandora's box.

Each of our local communities has an economic development department staffed with topnotch planners who are just waiting to see their promotional efforts take root.

The real gift - the modern version of Pandora's box - that Checci brought to our community last week was the promise that our airport has hope . . . if we control it.

A sidebar to the Arthur D. Little study, we believe, would have focused on the need of area communities to study the airport itself and deal with such airport-related problems as transportation to it and from it, noise pollution, internal airport modernization and organization and airport image.

A noted comedian toured our fair city this year and used Metro Airport as the basis for his routine. This comedian saw humor in the fact that our major, metropolitan airport is surrounded by "corn fields."

We believe now is the time to harvest those corn fields into a new era of development, jobs and tax base. Now is the time to realize that Metro Airport is our own local, modern version of a Pandora's box.

Checchi last week provided the hope for the future of Metro Airport. Now, officials from each of our local communities need to use their curiosity to its fullest extent to turn those airport corn fields - extending far beyond the airport boundaries and throughout western Wayne County - into jobs, tax base and a bustling, developing community of tomorrow.

Barrels are signs of community pride

The original intent of this letter was to vent my frustration and anger at those who stole the flower barrels from in front of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Upon recollection, however, I decided that this letter should deal with positives - with all those people who worked so diligently to provide and plant those barrels.

Commitment was evident from city departments to those members of the Wayne Garden Club, beautification committee, master gardeners, Business and Professional Women's Club, Wayne-Westland Soroptimists, as well as many others.

The businesses where the flower barrels are located are appreciative of all involved.

So, to those who have stolen barrels or vandalized some plantings, you did accomplish these things. However, you did not steal the spirit of cooperation and pride of the majority of Wayne citizens.

Land rezoning is good idea

If what I read in the June 29 edition of The Inkster Ledger-Star is accurate, I am disappointed with members of the Inkster Planning Commission and Inkster City Council.

Admittedly, I don't have all of the details in the rezoning request that was denied, but I have a hard time with what appears to me to be too much influence of a neighboring city over our city's destiny.

As far back as I can recall, every time there is a proposal to do something in that vicinity (Cherry Hill and Beech Daly roads), members of the Dearborn Heights City Council and some area residents oppose it, and the council dutifully knuckles under to their wishes.

I wonder just how much influence we would have if it were the other way around?

It appears to me that rezoning a corner of a major thoroughfare, such as Cherry Hill Road, is not too bad an idea. On Ford Road, in Dearborn Heights, the council apparently approved exactly the same thing that they opposed for our area.

The Dearborn Heights City Council could care less about the tax base here and rightfully so, because they were not elected by Inkster voters, and, conversely, neither is the Inkster council elected by Dearborn Heights voters.

Mine is an emotional argument, but my emotions are stirred by the emotional interference by our neighbors to the east.

Shopping center to boost tax base

The proposed shopping center near Cherry Hill and Beech Daly roads would only help the tax base of Inkster and help with a few jobs. I guess city council is waiting for the corner of Michigan Avenue and Inkster Road to be developed.

I'm not holding my breath. How much land is going to be enough and when will we find a developer who wants to spend time and money in Inkster? When will they wake up?

Councilman Stephen Berry, I wonder what kind of business can you put on one-half acre of land? Look at the car washes and bars in our city. Most of these are on one-half acre.

Local group touts abortion decision

The recent decision by the Supreme Court to uphold the Missouri abortion law has been a victory for pro-life advocates. This decision will help in restoring the sanctity of human life by acknowledging the humanity of the unborn.

Restoring legal protection to the unborn is of primary importance. This is a civil rights issue, not a religious issue. The U.S. Constitution states in the 14th Amendment, "No state shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

There are alternatives to abortion. Nationwide, there are 1,400 pregnancy service centers. In Michigan, there are more than 80 centers. In 1988, more than 68,000 women were helped through these centers.

Romulus Right to Life, an affiliate of Right to Life of Michigan, is grateful for the Supreme Court decision and looks forward to the eventual overturning of the Roe vs. Wade decision in October.

Exchange program asset to children

We would like to express our appreciation to all of the generous sponsors who chose to support the French-American back-to-back program this year.

With the funds we received, we were able to provide a plethora of field trips and activities for the visiting French children. They will undoubtedly remember our fair community and its citizens with fondness and affection.

This is the fourth year for the program. It is entirely funded with private and corporate donations, and its success is directly related to our donors' farsighted generosity.

Plymouth-Canton is one of only a very few communities in Michigan offering this program a unique opportunity for our children found almost nowhere else. It is a tribute and a credit to our community that it has been so successful and received so well.

Merci beaucoup!

VIEWPOINTS: How much of a sales-tax hike would you support for schools? *

* Question was asked before state lawmakers voted to place both a 1/2 and 2 cent tax-hike proposal on the Nov. 7 ballot

John Hoeffel
Westland

I would go to 7 percent sales tax, which is comparable in other states. I believe in better school programs and the increase for computer and high-tech programs for kids.

George Kramp
Inkster

One percent, because it's a good deal. A lot of the money from the lottery is supposed to be going to the schools, and I don't think that it is.

Joy Eck
Wayne

No increase. I wouldn't object if I knew what they were going to spend it on.

Mary Jean Essenmacher
Canton Township

Up to 5 percent, so that my kids have more opportunities at school.

Cindy Tyranski
Westland

To 6 percent. If it's going to aid the schools and benefit the children, I would be willing to pay it.

Janet Muse
Belleville

I would be willing to pay an additional 1 cent sales tax. I would like to see it all earmarked for education. I think we would collect a lot of money from tourists.

Calories don't count in this $15,000 winner

just desserts

It is too hot to cook. Unfortunately, it is never too hot to eat, and no matter how unpleasant the weather, humans have to take in some modicum of fuel in order to continue.

Perhaps, the effect heat has on the appetite is one reason summer is the best season to diet.

It has long been rumored to be easier to lose weight during the warm summer months for just that reason. But it has never worked for me. Perhaps, because summer brings fruit and cream pies loaded with whipping cream, wonderful cool puddings and delicious, calorie-laden cream desserts.

Most people are thrilled with delicious fruit salads, and who can resist watermelon, ice cold and dripping with wonderful juice? Me. I pass it up every time for a huge helping of home made ice cream or strawberry shortcake with enough calories to fuel a dock worker for a day.

And, being a person philosophically opposed to anything containing aspartame (that's Nutrasweet), diet treats are strictly taboo. My opposition to this chemical is based on an article I read while waiting in my doctor's office, which explained in great and gory detail the psychological damage caused to laboratory rats which ingested this stuff. According to these researchers, whom I have no reason to disbelieve, this stuff causes severe psychosis in these poor, sacrificial rodents.

Having long been of firm conviction that most rodents are of superior character to many people I know, myself, for instance, I figure I don't need anything else to endanger my mental well-being, tentative as it is. So, when I read that Weight Watchers had recently awarded a $15,000 prize for a diet pound-cake recipe, I figured I would try it.

The ingredients are all fairly natural and don't contain the usual chemicals found in reduced-calorie recipes. And, because I was in a hurry and didn't have time to go shopping for the Weight Watchers brand this and that, I used the stuff I had in the refrigerator or cupboard.

So, mine wasn't reduced calorie, but was still very, very good. And maybe it was slightly improved by slathering it with strawberries and raspberries drenched in sugar and coin-treau.

Hey, it's every man for himself.

Lemon pound cake

2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup margarine (Weight Watchers)
1 cup granulated sugar
3 eggs
1 cup lemon yogurt (Weight Watchers)
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar, sifted
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Combine flour, salt and baking soda and set aside. In large bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, cream margarine and granulated sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, yogurt and peel, beat one to two minutes until mixture is smooth. Stir in dry ingredients and thoroughly combine. Spray a bundt pan with nonstick cooking spray. Spread batter evenly in pan. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in middle comes out clean. Let cool in pan on rack for 15 minutes. Loosen edges and combine confectioner's sugar and lemon juice. Blend until smooth. Pour glaze evenly over top of cake. Makes 12 servings.

Try it . . . Area cook sure you will love healthy foods

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Yes, nutritious foods can be tasty, according to a Romulus resident who teaches low-income families to buy wisely at the grocery store.

To illustrate her point, Lucille Sparagowski serves many of the nutritious dishes she recommends at work to catering clients on the weekends.

Sparagowski loves finding recipes in magazines and transforming them to fit her healthy standards. Her creations are not especially out of the ordinary. They simply lack the salt and sugar and reduce the fat and cholesterol levels.

"I'm a mad scientist in the kitchen," Sparagowski said, with a smile.

Sparagowski is taking courses in culinary arts. Eventually, she hopes to expand her catering to a full-time business or open a restaurant which features tempting, yet healthy, dishes.

Nutrition, however, is not Sparagowski's only priority when preparing a recipe. Appearance and aroma will sell food long before taste is considered, she explained. Thus, everything she offers must be "a complete package."

Sparagowski stresses these ideas when working with low-income clients. The services she offers are provided through the Expanded Food Nutritional Education Program of Michigan State University.

Clients are recommended from friends or social-service organizations. Sparagowski teaches them to buy and prepare healthy choices. She also helps clients sharpen their cooking skills.

"Every lesson I do is different," Sparagowski said.

Nevertheless, she continuously encounters the same misconceptions about nutritious food.

"If it's good for you, it's probably going to be disgusting," is the theory Sparagowski tries to disprove.

"Diet plays a very important part of your everyday life. Nutritious foods don't have to be blah, tacky or boring," she explained.

Sparagowski recommends avoiding instant, processed and packaged foods.

"Once you start making things from scratch, there's nothing like it," she said.

One practical example is homemade pizza. Toppings can be creative, and the ingredients are not especially expensive, Sparagowski said.

Fresh vegetables are also good choices to add flavor and color to recipes, she said. Sometimes, people who turn their noses up at vegetables base their feelings on childhood memories.

"I suggest trying them different ways. If you try it one way and don't like it, try it two or three different ways," she explained.

To contact Sparagowski about catering services, call 941-1841.

All of Sparagowski's recipes below are light, summertime fare. All, however, were designed with good nutrition in mind.

Summertime stuffed vegetables

4 hollowed green peppers, tomatoes, zucchini or cucumbers
2 cups chunked tuna, cooked turkey or chicken
1 small white, yellow or red onion or 3 green onions, finely diced
1/2 carrot, finely shaved
1/4 cup celery, finely chopped (optional)
1/2 cup pea pods, steamed, chilled and chopped small (optional)
1/4 cup plain yogurt
1/4 cup low fat or regular sour cream
1/4 cup low fat or regular mayonnaise
1/4 cup light or regular salad dressing
1/4 teaspoon pepper - black, white or cayenne
1/4 teaspoon parsley
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder (or to taste)
3 to 5 green or black olives, cut into thin rings to garnish

In large bowl, mix tuna, chicken or turkey, along with mayonnaise, salad dressing, sour cream, yogurt, onions, carrots, pea pods and herbs. Mix well.

▲ Romulus resident Lucille Sparagowski (above) makes her living showing others how to eat healthy, inexpensive foods. Often, misconceptions about the taste of healthy food stem from childhood stereotypes. "Try it, you'll like it," Sparagowski will urge all would-be critics. Stuff into hollowed vegetable and garnish with olives. Serve on a leaf of lettuce, spinach or kale. Serves 4.

Tangy stuffed potato

4 medium baking potatoes
1 cup broccoli flowerettes
3 large mushrooms, thinly sliced
1 medium onion, sliced thin or diced fine
2 ounces low-fat Swiss cheese
2 ounces low-fat mozzarella, muens-ter, brick, monterey jack or white cheddar cheese
1 cup dry milk
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons low-fat, low-calorie margarine
1/4 teaspoon white pepper, cayenne pepper or paprika
1/2 teaspoon parsley (optional)
1 cup diced, cooked chicken or turkey (optional)
1/2 teaspoon sage, thyme or poultry seasoning (optional but advised if chicken or turkey is used)

In a small pan, saute broccoli, mushrooms and onions. Set aside in a bowl. In small saucepan, simmer the dry milk, flour and margarine in 1 cup water, low-fat milk, chicken stock or low-sodium bouillon over very low heat until well blended. Add herbs and cheese. Simmer until cheese is melted. Add herbs (if additional are desired) and poultry (if used), then add vegetables and simmer until all are heated through. Partially boil or bake potatoes. Pour mixture over top and heat in microwave or oven. Serve. (Microwave should be on medium setting for 1 to 1 1/2 minutes. Conventional oven should be at 375 degrees for 7 to 10 minutes). Makes 4 servings.

Meatless rice lasagna

3 cups cooked white or brown rice
10 cups prepared meatless spaghetti sauce
1/2 cup low-fat mozzarella cheese, grated
2 cups low-fat ricotta or cottage cheese
2 or 3 tablespoons Italian blend cheese, grated
1 teaspoon safflower, sunflower, olive or soy oil

Lightly grease a 2-inch deep baking pan. Place a layer of spaghetti sauce on bottom, then a layer of rice, then a layer of cheese mixture - the cheeses should be blended in advance - and 1 teaspoon of Italian herb blend (if desired). Repeat layering process until all ingredients are gone. The top layer should consist of spaghetti sauce and sprinkled grated cheese. Some mozzarella may be sprinkled on very top. Bake or microwave in medium heat until cheese melts. Serves 4.

Hearty spaghetti salad

1/2 pound spaghetti, broken in 2-inch pieces, cooked and chilled
1 cup broccoli flowerettes, raw or lightly steamed and chilled
1/2 cup cauliflower flowerettes, raw or lightly steamed and chilled
3 green onions, cut very fine - use entire green top
3 large mushrooms, sliced very thin (optional)
1 medium carrot, raw or lightly steamed, sliced into thin rings, chilled
1 small zucchini, cut into thin rings and quartered (optional)

2 large tomatoes, in large or medium chunks
1 teaspoon ground black or white pepper
2 tablespoons Italian blend cheese, grated fine (optional)
2 cups Italian dressing, low-calorie or regular
5 black olives, sliced into thin rings (optional)

Into a large, chilled bowl, toss cooked, chilled spaghetti, dressing, seasonings and all vegetables - except tomatoes. Marinate in refrigerator at least 2 hours. Add tomatoes just before serving and toss thoroughly. For best results, cut tomatoes just before serving to ensure firmness. Additional cheese may be sprinkled on before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Mixed fruit delight

1 1/4 cups fresh or frozen strawberries
1 cup dry milk-crystals
1 cup crushed pineapple
3 tablespoons malted milk-powder

Place all ingredients in a food processor or blender and mix at a high speed for 30 seconds. Place into dessert bowls and chill in freezer at least 1 hour or until frosty. Serve as an appetizer or dessert.

For a sweeter dessert, add 1 to 2 teaspoons sugar before blending or use sweetened pineapple or strawberries. If calories are a concern, use pineapple in own juice and unsweetened strawberries. For a shake, add 1 to 2 cups of pineapple juice before blending. Use only chilled ingredients for shake and serve immediately after blending.

YOU CAN'T HAVE TOO MANY FRIENDS ADOPT - A - PET

The animals pictured on this page, and countless others, are waiting for you to take them home. A pet will give you love, trust, loyalty and affection, and all that is required in return is a little food, water and a warm place to sleep. That seems a small price to pay for the satisfaction of a wagging tail or a happy purr whenever you come home. When you go into your local animal shelter, open your heart and home to one of these creatures, the rewards are well worth it!

30th anniversary

Fellows Creek is site of championship golf tournament

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Kevin Ryan has won the past two editions of the City Championship Golf Tournament.

And the 28-year-old amateur golfer, who hails from Inkster, figures to be a key player in the run for medalist honors when the 100 or more golfers come together Aug. 12-13 at the 30th summer golf classics.

The classic will be staged at Fellows Creek in Canton Township, the site of the last two championships.

Ryan shot a 148 for the 36-hole tournament a year ago to retain the title he earned the year before. In the 30-year history of the championships, Ryan has won the crown three times—in 1983, 1987 and in 1988.

Only Tom Piscopink of Wayne has topped the Inkster golfer's success. Piscopink claimed the title five times, winning his first in 1974, then putting together a string of victories in 1977, 1978 and 1979, then after a four-year hiatus, the Wayne golfer captured the crown again in 1984.

It was Piscopink's last appearance at the tournament.

"This summer classic has attracted some outstanding golfers during its history," said Bill Hawley, who has served as tournament director for more than a score of them. "I believe that one of the reasons why this tournament is so popular with golfers is because of its local aspects."

"It brings together golfers from our area who are interested in comparing their game with local and area players. There is a natural competitive spirit to go along with the camaraderie."

There are other reasons, of course.

The golfers will be competing for separate city championships, which are held simultaneously for participating communities. Amateur male golfers from the cities of Westland, Wayne, Garden City, Inkster, Belleville, and the townships of Canton and Van Buren are welcomed to compete for the titles of their respective communities.

There will be trophies awarded to the top three finishers in each of the flights, and an additional trophy will be awarded to the medalist (low scorer) of the entire flight.

In addition to competing for trophies, golfers who finish among the top five places will be eligible to play on their city team in the state finals, which will be staged later this summer. (However, to be eligible to compete at the state level, a golfer must be a bona fide resident of the city they represent.)

Wayne golfers will also be shooting for the Patrolman Len Anderson Memorial Trophy. The trophy, offered by the Wayne Police Department, is in memory of Patrolman Anderson, the first Wayne officer to lose his life in the line of duty.

Competitors will play 18-holes on the first day (Aug. 12), then return for the championship round the following day (Aug. 13).

Additional flight competitions will be conducted for each city only if the total entry from the city warrants it. If there is a tie for a trophy, a sudden death playoff will be staged to determine the winner.

There is a $39 entry fee that covers the costs of greens' fees and trophies.

To enter the tournament, please complete the entry blank accompanying this story. Mail it, with the $39 entry fee, to: Associated Newspapers, City Championship Golf, Sports Desk, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, MI. 48184.

Please make checks payable to Bill Hawley, tournament manager.

A tee time schedule will appear in the sports section of the Associated Newspapers the week prior to the tournament. Those who wish further information are urged to telephone Tom Mooradian, staff writer, at 729-4000 during regular business hours.

Winner of the last two City Championship Golf titles, Kevin Ryan (above) of Inkster has always been a key player in the summer classic. Ryan is expected to be back to defend his title when the 100 or more amateur golfers gather at Fellows Creek on Aug. 12-13 for the 30th anniversary of championships. ANP file photo

Inkster to conduct softball meetings

Inkster parks and recreation officials tonight will conduct a softball meeting to outline the rules and regulations for the third annual Johnnie A. Sims Memorial Softball Tournament.

The meeting will be staged at 6 p.m. in the Recreation Complex facilities, 2025 Middlebelt Road, about a quarter-mile north of Michigan Avenue. Softball coaches and managers who have teams entered in the summer classic, or their representatives, must attend the meeting.

The tournament will pit about 30 local and area softball teams who will begin the three-days of competition on Friday 21 on Westwood Park and Oakgrove Park diamonds.

"This tournament brings together some of the finer men's softball teams in the city and area," noted Ruth E. Williams, recreation director. "We are asking all coaches and managers who have teams in this year's tournament to participate in tonight's meeting."

Recreation officials said that trophies will be presented to the sponsors whose teams finish first, second or third, and individual trophies will be awarded team members of the teams that reach the championship round, (first and second places).

Hot? Try swimming!

The hot, humid summer weather getting to you?

The Inkster parks and recreation has a solution to the scorching weather. Why not enjoy the heat at the local swimming pool?

During the month of July and until Aug. 25, the municipal pool will be opened seven days a week. Those who wish to take advantage of the refreshing waters may do so for a small admission fee of $1 for those who are 17 and under, and $2 for adults.

The pool is open 1 to 2:30 p.m.; 3 to 4:30 p.m. and 5 to 6:30 p.m. to the general public. The evening swimming hour is 7 to 8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday.

This summer the recreation department will again accommodate groups who wish to stage pool parties.

"We can accommodate groups up to 150 people," said George Thompson, pool supervisor. There is a $50-an-hour rental fee.

The rental will include use of the pool, deck area, and lifeguards will be made available.

Hooked? Bass tourney lures local anglers

Every Tuesday night, Belleville Lake is filled with fishing boats as area fishermen try for the big catch and big cash.

The Tuesday Night Fishing Tournament is growing almost as much as the fish in Belleville and tournament officials are predicting another great year of fishing and tough competition.

"We have more than doubled participation from a year ago," said Tim Katona, a tournament organizer and owner of the South Street Bait Shop, in Belleville.

"I expect the trend to continue. It's a chance for a husband and wife or a father and son or a couple of friends to spend an evening out on the lake. The people are really enjoying themselves," Katona said.

The tournament, which costs $30 per two-man team, runs each Tuesday from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Cash prizes depend on the number of boats registered. For every five boats, another prize is added.

Last week, the first-place winner received $185 and the runner-up received $130. Seventh place was the last position with a cash prize of $20.

Also, a cash prize is given each week to the person who brings in the largest bass. Last week, the winner received $190.

The tournament is averaging 37 boats per week, 22 more boats than last year, Katona said. The 16 scheduled tournaments will run through September, with a Classic Tournament at the end of the year. Fishermen must compete in 10 out of the 16 tournaments to qualify for the Classic.

"Belleville Lake is one of the best inland lakes in the state," Katona said. "There are bass more than three pounds out there and the walleye population continues to grow. It's not unheard of to catch a seven- or eight-pound walleye."

Tournament rules state that fish must be alive, or a penalty of eight ounces will be deducted from the weight of the fish.

"People complain that we are killing all of the fish with our tournament," Katona said. "But I am the last person who wants to see that happen. In our first five tournaments, 373 fish have been caught and only four were dead."

Katona said the fish are treated before they are put back into the lake and that participants are required to have an aeration system installed in their boats.

All competitors must fish from a boat 12 feet or more in length and must use artificial bait.

For additional information about the tournament, call 697-0990.

Are high school sports detrimental?

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Is every high school student receiving the complete "education" available through a school athletic program?

John Roberts, executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, doesn't believe they are and would like to see local school districts develop policies designed to keep all students involved.

"With our current format, too many kids don't get a chance to play," Roberts said. "I believe we lose 50 percent of those who would like to play sports in high school."

Roberts, who has been executive director of the MHSAA for three years, believes school officials should develop guidelines which would encourage greater participation in athletics.

No player should be cut from outside sports, such as football,

See SPORTS, page B-7

Words of advice

High school sports do not need to be stressful. Experts list the following words of wisdom which all prep athletes should heed.

- Go at your own speed. There will always be a student who is smarter or faster. If you always compare yourself to others, you will never be happy or satisfied.
- Run your own race. Choose goals that are important to you—not your mother, father or peers.
- Competition should be fun. Try to enjoy yourself when swinging the ball or trying to outplay someone in band. If you can relax, you will likely perform better.
- Try to keep realistic goals. After you achieve one success, set another goal. Many small victories add up to a huge success.
- Try not to be overly concerned about failure. Nobody wins all of the time or accomplishes every goal. When you compete, you have to face the fact that you win some and you lose some. Winning isn't a sprint. It's a slow journey of many races along the way. Learn enough patience and endurance to meet your long-range goals.

baseball and track and field, Roberts said. He would also like to see policies requiring athletes to play a certain amount of time per game and also require coaches to start every player at least once during the season.

With some creative thinking, Roberts said, these policies would greatly improve the overall goals of high school sports programs.

"If we have rules where kids are required to get in games and play when the outcome of the game is still undecided, they will be much more interested," Roberts said. "Each kid would be more involved and the parents would be happy."

Some local athletic directors believe winning is not overly emphasized, but Roberts disagrees.

"We emphasize the winning too soon," he said. "We have the opportunity to play more kids at the junior varsity and freshman levels and we don't.

"It's a little different at the varsity level, but in the lower levels and even in the junior high schools, the goal to win prevents us from teaching more lessons of life."

Roberts, who believes it is not the association's "place" to make the changes, said the goal of a sports program is to "teach lessons that aren't readily available in other parts of the school."

"Sports teaches lessons of life in a setting that, because of emotions, has the volume turned up," he said. "It (sports) teaches situations that will come up again in life where the stakes will be much higher."

"The programs teach young people the importance of teamwork, sacrifice, how to work toward a common goal and how to accept criticism."

But if a player doesn't have an opportunity to participate or only wins or loses, he or she doesn't receive the "whole education," Roberts said.

Westland Hardee's restaurant opens

Westland has a "new" Hardee's restaurant. The restaurant, located at Joy and Middlebelt roads, received a face lift beginning June 9, when the original structure was closed for repairs. The new facility offers a larger indoor seating area and a contemporary interior design. The parking area has also expanded to accommodate more customers, company officials said.

The management staff will be headed by Romus Jefferies, district manager, and Karen Natiw, restaurant manager.

The refurbished restaurant reopened July 1.

Correction

A story about the Keller & Stein greenhouses, in Canton Township, appearing in the June 29 edition of the Associated Newspapers incorrectly identified Clark Keller as "Carl." Carl Keller was the founder of the first Keller flower shop, in Detroit.

In addition, the Keller family - not the local business - has been in the florist business since 1888.

Auto insurance: Reforms net mixed reaction

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

State lawmakers believe auto-insurance rates could be trimmed as much as 20 percent if legislation they are considering is approved. However, local insurance agents believe the new law would actually mean rate increases for 60 percent of Michigan drivers.

The bill, currently being studied by a House of Representatives insurance committee, calls for a 20-percent reduction in insurance rates, as well as a ban on insurance "redlining" - the practice of basing rates on geographical location.

"What the bill attempts to do is put auto-insurance companies under the legislative microscope," said state Rep. Jim Kosteva (D-Canton Township). "We want to make sure they are treating the Michigan consumer fairly."

Sponsors of the legislation believe auto-insurance companies are making exorbitant amounts of money from Michigan motorists. The lawmakers believe insurance officials are hiding such money in profit-and-loss statements by investing premiums elsewhere, Kosteva said.

Currently, auto-insurance companies are permitted to charge customers based on the neighborhood in which they live and work, their driving records and seatbelt use.

In the new legislation, charges based on the neighborhood in which consumers work or live would be prohibited.

Local auto-insurance agents view the pending legislation as detrimental to their industry, as well as to their customers. Seminars have been staged to discuss the possible ramifications of the proposed legislation.

"If government gets involved, it will be detrimental to 75 percent of the population," said Jim Juenemann, of Juenemann Insurance Agency, in Westland.

Juenemann has attended several meetings to discuss the legislation. He and several of his counterparts believe the current system is better than the one proposed.

The current rating system used by insurance agents, Juenemann said, allows customers with good driving records and who live in "safer" areas to be rewarded.

If approved, Juenemann said, the legislation would force insurance providers to offer no premium discounts. While some residents would receive the publicized rate-reduction, 60 percent of Michigan drivers would face rate increases, he continued.

"There needs to be some changes in the insurance business, but not these," Juenemann explained.

Additional guidelines introduced as part of the legislation would require state approval of insurance rate-increases.

Interest-rate decline boosts home sales

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

An upbeat June plus declining mortgage interest-rates this month equals a sizzling summer sales season for area real-estate agents.

Overall local home sales increased 11 percent in June compared to May, according to officials from the Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors. In addition, home values increase 0.05 percent during the sales period.

Having reported a 3-percent decline in home sales during May, those numbers are good news to area Realtors. Even better news this week was an expected decline in the prime lending rate from 11 to 10.5 percent.

"Interest rates make a big difference in the market," explained Dottie LeCuer, Realtor for Red Carpet Keim, in Westland.

Everything affects the housing market, LeCuer said, including summer vacations, gardening and retirements. But whatever is currently affecting the local market is doing so in a positive way, she continued.

"We fully expect the market to stay strong and to have the continual appreciation of property exceed that of inflation," said Richard J. Loughlin, president and chief executive officer of Century 21.

ident and chief executive officer of Century 21.

Although nobody can be certain that interest rates will remain low - or whether they will decline further - financial experts are claiming that the market continues to support a declining interest rate.

Potential homebuyers can now find mortgage interest-rates of 10.25, 10.5 and 10 percent. Interest rates, in general, are expected to fall to the 9-percent mark before the end of

Some area cable-television viewers are enjoying a new and improved picture this week, although they may not have noticed it. Officials of Continental Cablevision, in Westland, launched a new fiber-optics super trunk line between the Dearborn Heights cable-television base office, on Gully Road, and Westland residents. The new link replaces the coaxial cables used to transmit cable signals from Dearborn Heights to Westland since viewers there were first "turned on" to cable television in 1984. The fiber-optic link will generate a better picture quality and lessen the potential for mechanical breakdowns, according to Continental Cablevision Area Manager Kay'elen Perry (right), who switched on the new system July 6 at the city cable-television production studio, on Warren Road, in Westland. Joining her were Westland city officials, including Deputy Mayor Andrew Spisak (left). ANP photo by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

Funerals: New local program 'insures' peace of mind

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Life insurance has been added to the list of services provided by an Inkster funeral home.

In April, officials of the Beams of Heaven Funeral Home, on Inkster Road, initiated the Forethought Life Insurance Program, a system that allows people to finance and arrange their funeral services in advance.

Forethought insurance became available in Michigan two years ago when state laws changed to permit funeral homes to sell life insurance. Beams of Heaven Funeral Home is the only Inkster facility offering the program.

Those on a low or fixed income are most likely to benefit from the insurance program, said Dorothy Louise Wade, funeral directress. Wade recently completed training to become a licensed insurance agent.

"We have families come in. Sometimes they don't have enough insurance for us to provide the services they desire," Wade said. "With this program you're able to purchase exactly what you want for yourself."

Forethought coverage is effective immediately, Wade said, and is available to anybody.

Unlike most insurance policies, Forethought is not considered a form of income. Thus, people relying on social services or social security are permitted to use the program.

"When people find out about it, they're very happy about it," Wade said.

Because most people do not think of visiting a funeral home until a death has occurred, Wade is attempting to inform the community of the planning program. She and the Rev. Gleo Wade, executive director, are sending pamphlets about the program to local residents.

"If they don't want to come to the funeral home, we will come to the home," Wade said.

Rates for the policy are divided into four groups and are based on the health of the clients. Although clients are asked if they have been diagnosed with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, no one with AIDS is turned down, Wade said.

The new Forethought Life Insurance program at the Beams of Heaven Funeral Home, in Inkster, provides funeral arrangements in advance, including prepayment, according to Funeral Director Dorothy Wade. ANP special photo

Northwest investor, county tout airport expansion

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

One month after Wayne County officials prepared to sue Northwest Airlines to prevent a takeover of the company, County Executive Edward McNamara is praising the buyout as the best thing to happen in this area for years.

McNamara made a public statement about the buyout Friday, accompanied by Alfred Checchi who led a group of Los Angeles investors in the acquisition of Northwest Airlines several weeks ago.

Expansion plans for Detroit Metropolitan Airport will not be jeopardized by the takeover, McNamara and Checchi announced. The plans will move forward as planned to include a north/south access road, a new terminal and runway extensions. The cost of the project is expected to total $908 million.

As a first step, Northwest Airlines has allocated $3 million to study the feasibility of the new terminal.

"Clearly, you don't authorize that kind of expenditure unless

I am very pleased. Obviously, the good health of Northwest Airlines is of importance to my community. I'm pleased to see young, dynamic, interested, concerned people like Mr. Checchi at the helm.

— Beverly McNally
Mayor of Romulus

you plan to go forward," Checchi said.

Northwest Airlines officials created a hub at Metro Airport several years ago. County officials now anticipate passenger traffic for Northwest to double by 1995.

"The Detroit hub, if not the most important, is one of the top 10," Checchi said.

McNamara and Checchi met for several hours before their announcement to discuss expansion plans.

"It is clearly in the interest of Northwest to see that the terminal gets built," Checchi said.

Despite McNamara's assurances that the expansion will move ahead, he was unable to offer a timetable for actual construction. He hopes to see a north/south access road completed before work starts on the new terminal.

Local officials perceived the "thumbs up" on the expansion as good news for future development projects.

"I'm very pleased. Obviously, ly, the good health of Northwest Airlines is of importance to my community," Romulus Mayor Beverly McNally said. "I'm pleased to see young, dynamic, interested, concerned people like Mr. Checchi at the helm."

McNally attended the news conference Friday.

In Romulus, at least two large-scale developments depend on the airport. The proposed Metro World Centre would be less than a half mile from the airport and would include a resort, conference centers, a college facility, a shopping center and office and retail space.

In addition, the Metro Airport Center, already under construction, is using the airport as a selling point to possible tenants.

In Westland, The Eloise property, on Michigan Avenue, is being eyed for airport-related development. A recently completed airport development study for Westland, Romulus and Inkster reported the 220-acre Eloise property would be ideal for air-freight and storage-warehouse operations.

summer, financial analysts say.

That news has brought first-time buyers out in full force, according to LeCuer. A long list of possible financing packages makes it possible for young couples to purchase a home with as little as a 5-percent down payment — even lower with federally backed FHA and VA mortgages.

"It's difficult to save enough for a bigger down payment, but young people with good financial records are finding they can get a loan for 95 percent of the price of the house," LeCuer said.

Despite the good news about interest rates, new homebuyers will face one dilemma, LeCuer said. A shortage of listings in Canton Township and Westland has prompted an all-time high for the demand for local housing.

Nevertheless, market analysts are assuring those who have shied away from the housing market that property values will continue to increase, with little likelihood of a housing price-collapse, LeCuer said.

"GOOD LUCK TIM!"

LOVE - Alley Cat Carrie and Brandi

COMES THE DAWN.
After awhile you learn to subtle the difference between holding a hand and chaining a soul. And you learn that love doesn't mean leaning and company doesn't mean security and you begin to accept your defeats with your head up and your eyes open with the grace of a woman not the grief of a child and you learn to build all your roads on today, because tomorrow's ground is to uncertain for plans and futures have a way of falling down in mid-flight. After awhile you learn that even sunshine burns if you get too much, so you learn to plant your own garden instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers, and you learn that you really can endure that you really are strong and you really do have worth and you learn and learn with every goodbye you learn.

GOT SOMETHING to say? Say it here! It's fun! Call 729-3300 to place your personal ad.

LOOK OF TODAY

Growth, development are watchwords for township

By DANIEL CALABRESE

Residents of Canton Township have watched enormous growth during the past 20 years. From the rural community that was Canton in the 1960s, the township has become an increasingly modern area, complete with new subdivisions, increased government services, new business developments and a more active school system.

Following is a look at these different aspects of life in Canton, examining the status of each today.

Government

Canton continues to be managed in a township form of government, unlike the neighboring cities of Westland and Wayne. A seven-member board of trustees oversees the township government.

The board consists of three full-time, elected administrators, including Supervisor Thomas Yack, Clerk Loren Bennett and Treasurer Gerald Brown. The remainder of the board is filled by Trustees John Preniczky, Elaine Kirchgatter, Robert Shefferly and Henry Whalen.

During 1988 and early this year, township officials discussed the possible hiring of a superintendent to manage the day-to-day operations of the township, a task now conducted by the supervisor. Such a structure would be similar to the city manager form of government in place in the cities of Wayne and Belleville.

The plan was nixed, however, and a full-time supervisor continues to manage the township.

Inside the township municipal building, which is located at 1150 S. Canton Center Road, the supervisor oversees various department heads, who aid in the management of the township. The current departments of township government include parks and recreation, finance, community and economic development, public works, building and engineering, water and personnel.

About this section

This is Today, the special magazine supplement to the six Associated Newspapers. Each issue of today is focused on a specialized topic of interest to area readers.

This week, we focus on Canton Township - the upscale western Wayne County community where growth and progress are everyday words. History seems foreign to this newly developed land, but, in fact, history is deeply rooted into the success story of the community.

From the past and present to the future, we are taking a brief look at the area and providing a few facts area residents might never have imagined. In future issues of Today, we will focus on other area communities, providing the same historical and futuristic look at the people, the places and the events that have shaped and will shape the community.

For an advertising list of future Today issues and topics, call Natalie Kozorosky at 729-4000.

HISTORY

Canton Center School, located on the corner of Proctor and Canton Center roads, is now the site of the Canton Historical Museum. Before it was closed in 1962, it was the last operating one-room school in Wayne County. In this April 9, 1915 photo, students pose with the American flag. THAT WAS THEN

Roots of Canton Township date to the early 1830s

By DANIEL CALABRESE

In the 1820s, the land now known as Canton Township was filled with neither businesses nor subdivisions. Not many people called the area "home" either.

The dominant inhabitants of the area then were deer, bears, wolves, lynx, foxes, raccoons and porcupines, among others common to the north woods.

Native Americans, not yet introduced to the white man, called the area "home." Information published by the Canton Historical Society reveals that the Potawatomi tribes were likely to be the most numerous in the area, having spilled over from the southwest portion of the Michigan territory, where most Potawatomi lived.

Lewis Cass, then Michigan territorial governor, had ordered the Indians out of the area in 1813. But many remained, living in wigwams and hunting and fishing to subsist.

But life began to change in 1825, when white European settlers, already living in nearby Plymouth and Nankin townships, made their way to the territory in southern Plymouth.

That began the history of Canton Township, which remains today as a longstanding community. Following are some highlights in the history and development of Canton, from the earliest days as a fledgling community to some of the most significant points in recent time.

■ 1833 – Joseph and Sarah Suggitt wrote to a Mr. John Padget, urging him to move to what was then known as South Plymouth, saying, "The land in most parts is low and a rich soil that occasions the ague, but I consider Michigan a healthful country, as for the expense of coming or the distance, we can not exactly tell you."

■ March 7, 1834 – Canton Township achieved independence by enactment of the Michigan Territorial Legislature. Previously part of Plymouth Township, Canton was created when Plymouth became one of many Michigan townships deemed "oversized" and in need of being segmented.

Shortly after, the first election of Canton Township officers was conducted at the home of Henry Chaffee. James Safford was elected the first township supervisor.

■ 1860 – Abner Hitchcock built an inn on Ridge Road, midway between Ypsilanti and Plymouth. This

Among the familiar names and faces in Canton Township is that of the Padgets. John Padget was urged to move to the township in 1833. The home is located on Geddes Road. Photo courtesy of the Canton Historical Museum strategic development helped spur growth in the Cherry Hill village.

■ 1875 – The first township hall was built near the center of the township. The cost of the project was $700.

■ March 25, 1890 – The first Canton political star hit the statewide scene when Benjamin W. Huston was appointed attorney general of Michigan to fill a vacancy. His tenure was short-lived, however. In the next election, less than a year later, he lost the post.

■ 1925 – Canton gained the nickname it would retain until the 1970s – "Sweet Corn Capital of the World." But Canton also produced a significant share of the wheat and dairy products used in the area, largely because of the central location of the township.

■ May 19, 1943 – Henry Ford made his mark in Canton, purchasing the 175-acre Wilson dairy farm at the corner of Ridge and Cherry Hill roads and converting it into an automobile plant. In the plant, Ford provided jobs for disabled war veterans. But he deliberately shunned publicity about his philanthropic endeavor, determined that the men he hired should live and work in peace.

After undergoing a form of rehabilitation in the Cherry Hill plant, Ford's employees went on to more demanding employment in areas throughout the country.

■ 1948 – Canton joins with Plymouth to form a single school district, which was not officially renamed the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools until 1977.

■ 1961 – Canton became one of the first charter townships in Michigan. The change, which became possible when the township population increased to more than 2,000, allowed Canton to retain all of the powers it had previously in general laws of the state and enacted such new powers as the establishment of a police force, traffic ordinances and broader health ordinances.

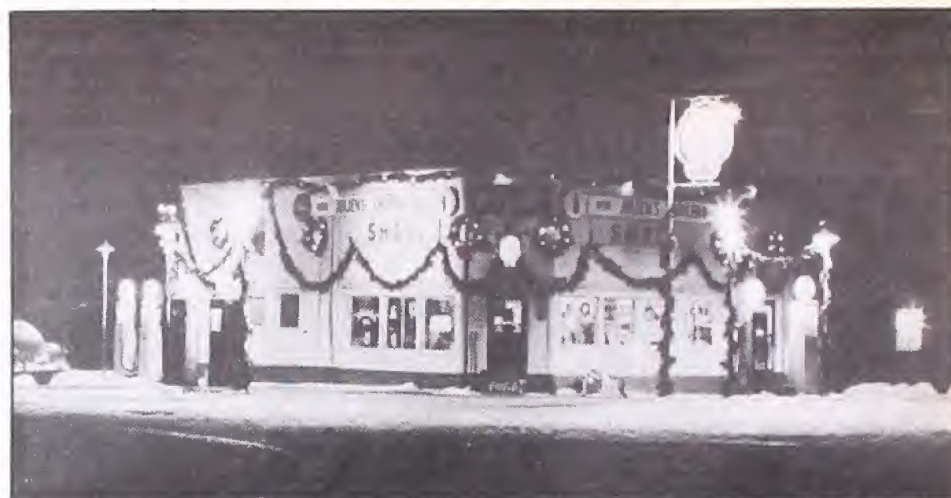

Despite these advantages, voters narrowly approved the proposal by at 234-216 margin.

The seven-member township planning commission was also created to direct the intensifying growth of the township.

■ 1968 – After nearly 100 years as a general store and gathering hall, the Cherry Hill House, located at the corner of Cherry Hill and Ridge roads, was converted into an apartment house, which it remains today.

■ 1971 – The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools opened the Centennial Educational Park, containing Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth-Salem high schools, at Canton Center and Joy roads. The 305-acre site would become the cornerstone of the school district, which encompasses five communities.

■ 1977 – Members of the township board of trustees established the first full-time police department and staged a millage election to fund the new operation. ■

Schools

Most of Canton Township is located within the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district, which also includes the city of Plymouth, the townships of Plymouth, Salem and Superior and part of Northville Township.

Although parts of southern Canton are located in the Wayne-Westland and Van Buren school districts, all the schools within the township boundaries are part of the Plymouth-Canton district.

Plymouth-Canton includes 12 elementary schools (including six in Canton), five middle schools and two high schools, both of which are located at Centennial Educational Park, at Canton Center and Joy roads, in Canton.

In the 1988-89 school year, 15,710 students attended Plymouth-Canton schools, which received voter approval for an 8-mill renewal and 4-mill increase on the district tax levy. Next year, the district will levy 36.94 mills for operation of the schools.

Recreation

While the eastern half of Canton Township grows and the western half displays promise for more of the same, township recreation officials hope they can keep up with the growth.

Mike Gouin, director of the Canton parks and recreation department, said he looks forward to "giant steps" in local recreation, such as a community recreation center and a possible parks area at a soon-to-be-developed landfill site on Michigan Avenue at Lilley Road.

Township officials also plan to develop 50 acres of recently purchased land, adjacent to the current Canton Recreation Complex, behind the township hall.

"We have done a good job in providing services," Gouin said. "There are still a few areas in which we have deficiencies."

Gouin pointed to current recreational attractions, such as Fellows Creek Golf Course, located on Michigan Avenue, east of I-275, the Canton Recreation Complex and Flodin Park. This year, the parks and recreation department has sponsored local recreation events, such as a five-mile run, a supervised playground program, a hot-shot basketball contest and family trips to Tiger Stadium.

When the recreation complex is developed further, Gouin said, he would like to install a community pool.

"We really want to develop something that's going to be an attraction to people, rather than something they feel fenced in at," Gouin said.

Business community

The main strips for the Canton business community remain Ford and Canton Center roads and Michigan Avenue. Since the early 1970s, those areas and others in the township have become increasingly filled with business activity.

Frank McMurray, an independent insurance agent, has operated his State Farm-affiliated McMurray Insurance office in Canton since 1970.

When looking at the current state of the Canton business community, McMurray, a past president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce and 1988 Small Businessman of the Year, said Canton remains a "bedroom" community that has experienced steady but not enormous growth.

During the past 15 years, Canton residents have welcomed two major shopping outlets, Meijer's Thrifty Acres and K-mart, both located on Ford Road, east of Canton Center Road. When those stores came to Canton, McMurray said, it marked a change in the way business and members of the community approached the area.

"That meant the light was on for anyone who wanted to come into Canton Township," McMurray said.

The one major business initiative that is still missing, McMurray said, is a large shopping mall that could attract people from throughout the area. A recent survey conducted by chamber of commerce officials showed that Canton shoppers tend to head for malls in other communities, such as Westland Center, in Westland, Wonderland Mall, in Livonia and Briarwood Mall, in Ann Arbor.

McMurray predicted that a large shopping mall could develop at the Canton Center and Cherry Hill area in the near future and pegged that area as the next hotbed of business development in the township.

He also predicted increased cooperation from the township government, hoping for more friendly positions on issues such as sign ordinances and billboards for I-275.

McMurray also believes there is potential for more development along Michigan Avenue, although people continue to view that strip as more of a highway than a business corridor.

The addition of a large hotel, McMurray said, would probably be needed to spur Michigan Avenue developments.

Residential communities

Since the early 1970s, residential communities have been consistently sprouting across the eastern portion of Canton Township.

Current subdivisions include a typical lot of between 60 and 100 feet. The average home price in Canton last year was $94,000, according to the Wayne-Oakland Board of Realtors. This year, that price has neared the $100,000 mark — the highest of most western Wayne County communities.

But township officials are engaging in a new push to provide upper-income housing, hoping new developments will allow Canton to keep successful residents who would otherwise leave for more upscale communities.

Such developments are already planned for the northwest portion of the township. Township planning officials predict that there will be further home developments throughout western Canton. ■

INTO THE FUTURE

Township planners eye an upscale community tomorrow

By DANIEL CALABRESE

Predictions for the future of Canton Township have ranged from modest to fantastic to downright depressing.

In 1984, when Canton residents were celebrating the 150th anniversary of the township, then township Planner James Kosteva (who now represents Canton and the surrounding area in the Michigan House of Representatives) wrote a fictional piece depicting Canton in 2034 — after the "Great Asian War" had stripped the area of its foundations and destroyed much of what is there today.

Barring realization of Kosteva's vision, township planning officials see a continuation of population growth that could increase the average income and create a more diverse community.

In a survey conducted for the township in 1987 by the Wayne State University Center for Urban Studies, it was estimated that Canton will be home to as many as 83,000 people by the year 2005.

That would represent an increase of 37.4 percent from 1985 figures.

David Nicholson, director of the Canton Township Department of Community and Economic Development, believes that such growth could result, in part, from the increased availability of upscale housing in the currently rural western portion of the township.

"I don't have any question in my mind that this is already beginning to happen," Nicholson said.

While eastern Canton has grown tremendously since the early 1970s, the western end of the township has still remained a sparsely populated, wooded area that thrives on farming and residential activity found in the east.

But, as township officials openly seek ways to accommodate upscale members of the community, the west looks to be a definite hub for future activity.

Two major projects already under way include the Rolling Woods subdivision, being developed in the Napier and Joy roads area, and the Fox Run subdivision, which is planned for the Ford and Beck roads.

Nicholson said people looking for homes with a value of more than $100,000 will be able to find them in these developments. He added that other parts of west Canton could also provide development opportunities in the near future.

Homes in Fox Run and Rolling Woods are expected to be priced at approximately $125,000.

Canton Township became a home for professional, technically oriented people during the early 1980s, Nicholson said, when problems in the auto industry forced many auto workers to sell their Canton homes to white-collar, upscale professionals.

Now that those people are looking for larger, more expensive homes, people starting their careers will want to buy the already established homes.

Nicholson and other township officials have said that the upscale homebuyers should be encouraged to remain. Township Supervisor Thomas Yack believes their presence is an essential priority to help maintain a strong tax base.

A widening gap between births and deaths could be another factor in population increases. In 1970, birth and death figures reported by the state government were about even in Canton Township. That year, there were 23 births and 21 deaths in Canton.

But, by 1985, Canton experienced 877 births and only 186 deaths. During that period, when Canton grew as a result of massive migration, population quadrupled.

Projections from the Wayne State study also show an increasingly middle-aged base to the township. While about 11,000 Canton residents are between the ages of 35 and 44 today, the study estimated that nearly 19,000 township residents will be in that age bracket by the year 2005.

In the 45-65 age bracket, the current figure of 9,000 is expected to increase to almost 16,000 by 2005, while the 65 and older bracket is expected to increase from 2,800 to approximately 4,500.

The study suggested a dramatic increase and decrease in the 20-34 age bracket, predicting that it will jump from the current level of approximately 21,250 to 22,850 in 1995, then return to 21,400 in 2005.

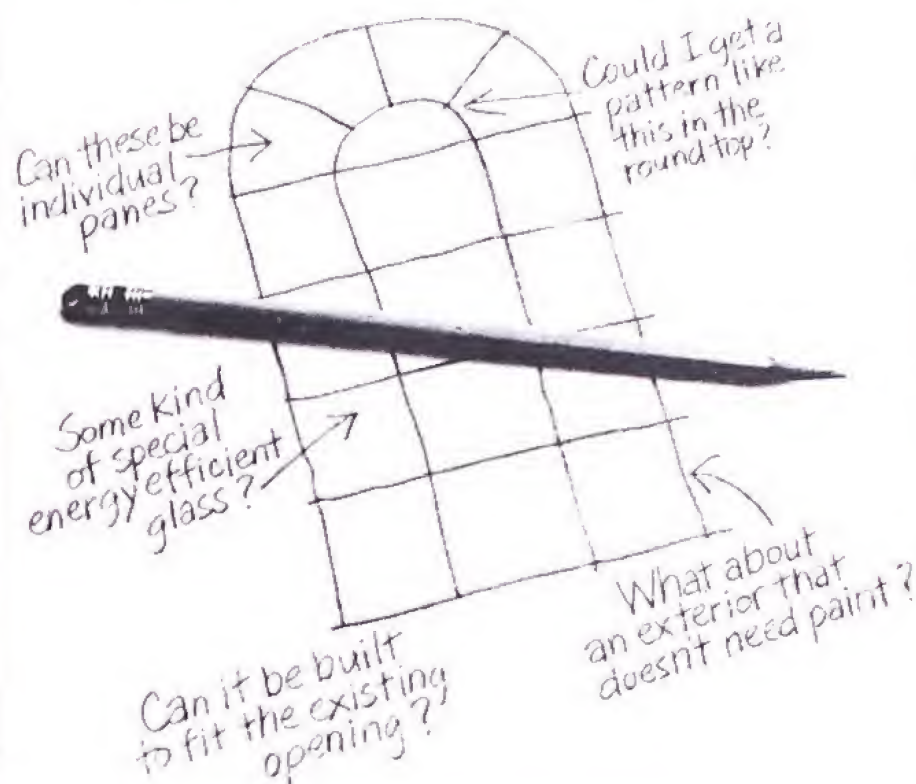

Despite the expected population growth, Nicholson could not predict any major commercial expansion in the township.

In other circles, however, there is talk of major commercial expansion.

Frank McMurray, who has operated his McMurray Insurance business, on Canton Center Road since 1970, is a past president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce. He predicted last week that the intersection of Canton Center and Cherry Hill roads could become the new hub of commercial activity, complete with a shopping mall and other multi-million dollar complexes.

According to McMurray, the Michigan Avenue corridor could develop, as well, if a major hotel is constructed to serve as a cornerstone. ■
